VEGAN BEEF

IN AUGUST 2017, when Minneapolis’ Herbivorous Butcher tried to trademark the phrase “vegan butcher,” they were denied. Weeks later, when Nestlé and Sweet Earth tried, they were approved. Sound unfair? The brother and sister behind the HB think so too, so they’re taking on the food giant via the Patent and Trademark Office. “There are a lot of vegan butcher shops,” co-owner Aubry Walch told the Star Tribune. “We’re all a part of the same team. We just don’t want a largest company in the world to come in and say we’re going to take ‘The Vegan Butcher.’” Depending on a panel ruling, there could be a court case and trial—which the Walches say they’re willing to battle through.

Can AI help Minneapolis Public Schools curb teacher turnover?

Minneapolis Public Schools is up against a vicious cycle.

Like a lot of districts that are relatively poor (65 percent of students qualify for subsidized lunch) and nonwhite (70 percent of students are people of color), it has a hard time hanging on to teachers. Its turnover rate in 2018 was 10 percent, compared to the national average of 8 percent. It was even worse for teachers of color: 12 percent.

The constant drain means Minneapolis' teachers are, on average, less experienced and less diverse. It also usually ends up costing the district a lot of money. And it leads to poorer outcomes for students.

"There's a lot of research that shows there's a lot of variation in the effectiveness of teachers," labor economist and University of Minnesota associate professor Aaron Sojourner says. One year with an inexperienced or less skilled instructor can make a noticeable difference in a student's life.

Sojourner and his fellow researchers wondered if some turnover could be avoided by hiring smarter. Maybe, with the help of algorithms and AI, they could find patterns that lead to longer-lasting, better teachers, and avoid more biases in the hiring process.

They took more than 16,000 applications received by Minneapolis Public Schools between 2007 and 2013, and used a machine learning program to analyze patterns in work history, experience, and how well teachers fared in the district. The results were published last month in Applied Psychology.

Teachers with more work experience tended to be better hires and stay on longer. What was surprising was the range of what that work experience could be. Sima Sajjadi, University of Minnesota Ph.D. and lead author on the study, says job titles mattered a lot less than the knowledge and skills accumulated in previous positions.

RENEE JONES SCHNEIDER, STAR TRIBUNE

"Waiters and waitresses, people with psychology backgrounds, people with sales experience," she says—these backgrounds were all "actually helpful" in creating better teachers.

This isn't the first time machine learning has been used to optimize the hiring process, and it hasn't always gone well. The most famous example was a computer program used by Amazon until 2015—when it was discovered it had developed an accidental gender bias by analyzing way more applications from men than from women.

There are a lot of concerns about allowing computers to run away with things and introducing dangerous consequences. Sajjadi thinks they're justified.

"People ask me if I think hiring should move completely to AI and machine learning, and I say 'absolutely not,'" she says.

But the results of this study show promise. Simulations suggest that the recommendations from the algorithm would decrease racial disparities in MPS' hiring process.

Human judgement will always be required. But maybe we'll judge just a little bit better with a robotic angel on our shoulders. —HANNAH JONES

WINTER LIGHTS AT THE ARBORETUM

MINNESOTA LANDSCAPE ARBORETUM

Just in time for the holidays, the Minnesota Landscape Arboretum transforms into a bonanza of lights, decorations, and yuletide cheer. Bundle up and shove a bunch of those hand-warmer things into your boots, then stroll through the 13 amazing light installations. There's plenty of new, botanically themed displays each year, so even if you go every winter it's still a fresh sensory experience. Oh, and there is a giant metal snake at the Arb, and that's super badass no matter what time of year it is. Be sure to hop up on the ice throne and snap some pics for the 'gram, then pick up a s'mores kit and get your roast on at one of the bonfire spots located throughout the grounds. If you're not in the mood to freeze but still want to be a part of the festivities, there is a bananas 25-foot-tall live poinsettia tree inside the Great Hall, decorated with cool botany-inspired ornaments. There's a cash bar, too, because the only thing better than staring at Christmas lights is staring at Christmas lights with a smooth hot chocolate and whiskey buzz. 5 to 9 p.m. Fridays through Sundays. $15; kids 15 and under are free. 3675 Arboretum Dr., Chaska; 612-624-2200. November 22-January 5 —PATRICK STRAIT

THE HOLIDAY PAGEANT

"It was just this little weird thing that we did," says director Michael Sommers about the origins of what became Open Eye Figure Theatre's Holiday Pageant. "We made it in the living room. We had a young show, and then an adult show, and there was mulled wine. We did a couple of nights, and then the next year 100 people showed up in the living room." That was in the 1980s, but the wildly creative production draws on an even older tradition: the medieval practice of telling sacred stories with secular panache, mixing bawdy humor and genuine wonder. From the pageant's DIY beginnings, it grew to a fully staged spectacular at the Pantages Theatre before scaling back down to Open Eye's current storefront space. Now the company is bringing the pageant back after a half-decade hiatus. "My children are actually performing in it," says Sommers, "which kind of brings it back to where it came from." Incorporating live actors, live music, and the company's world-renowned puppetry, the pageant's return will be cheered by the multigenerational fans of Minnesota's most wickedly entertaining Christmas story. 7:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays; 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. $12-$26. 506 E. 24th St., Minneapolis; 612-874-6338. December 6-22 —JAY GABLER

LOYCE HOULTON'S NUTCRACKER FANTASY

HISTORIC STATE THEATRE

As buoyant and hectic as a child's holiday dream, this Minnesota Dance Theatre's Nutcracker surges with nonstop dancing. Even the sets move, with shifting scrims, projections, and set pieces that evoke the transformative journey of young Marie Silberhaus. The story begins at a Christmas party in 19th-century Germany, and unfolds through the eyes of Marie as her godfather, Drosselmayer, takes her on an extraordinary adventure to the Land of Snow and the Kingdom of the Sugar Plum Fairy. From the idiosyncratic maneuvers of Drosselmayer's marvelous toys—marionettes, wooden soldiers, and assorted dolls—to the battle scene where the intrepid Nutcracker defeats the wicked Rat Queen and her minions, this production captures the holiday spirit with just enough scary parts to keep the kids wide-eyed and alert. A blizzard of snowflakes sweeps Marie to a magic kingdom where dancers from many lands show their stuff and the Sugar Plum Fairy spins Marie out of her nightmare and into the land of happily ever after. All this as a 44-piece orchestra plays Tchaikovsky's iconic score, led by conductor Philip Brunelle. 7:30 p.m. Fridays; 3 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays; 1 p.m. Monday, December 23. $30-$75. 805 Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis; 612-339-7007. December 13-23 —LINDA SHAPIRO

ICE CASTLES

LONG LAKE REGIONAL PARK

The Ice Castles are back in Minnesota for a sixth installment, this time setting up shop in New Brighton. What started with a guy in Utah trying to build an ice cave for his daughter has become a massive tourist sensation, with locations popping up all over the country. Castles feature tunnels, fountains, slides, and crawl spaces, making it feel like the movie Frozen has come to life. Construction begins in November, as professional ice artisans have been growing, harvesting and placing up to 10,000 icicles each day to create the structure, which will be lit up by LED lights once it has reached peak winter wonderland. The expected opening date is early January, and it will likely stay open through March—but that's only if the weather cooperates and stays cold enough that the castles remain frozen. So, realistically, we're saying it'll probably be open until at least Memorial Day. Find updates and more info at icecastles.com/minnesota. 1500 Old Hwy. 8, New Brighton. January through March —PATRICK STRAIT

SAINT PAUL WINTER CARNIVAL

VARIOUS LOCATIONS

For 134 years, Minnesota has been celebrating winter and showing the world that the weather here isn't so scary. The party returns this January for 11 days of chilly fun. That includes parades, like the nighttime Moon Glow Parade and the daytime march for King Borealis. Rice Park is home to the beautiful ice sculptures and the ice bar, where you can order up beer, wine, and warm mulled drinks. The area will host a slew of happenings, including family festivals, a local makers' mart, a disco night, and a dog-friendly happy hour with Hops & Hounds. The Vulcan Snow Park at the Minnesota Fairgrounds is also stacked with things to see and do, such as snow sculpting contests, the giant snow slide and maze, sporting events and competitions, and snowboarding demos. For a complete schedule of events, see the official website, www.wintercarnival.com, or call the main hotline at 651-223-7400 for details. January 23 through February 2 —JESSICA ARMBRUSTER

11TH ANNUAL WINTER BEER DABBLER

MINNESOTA STATE FAIRGROUNDS

Thanks to the renaissance of craft breweries, beer drinkers now have access to a vast selection of elixirs, often creatively engineered to match the time of year. Tapping into this seasonal focus, the Winter Beer Dabbler features samples of some 600 beers and ciders from more than 180 companies. The event will provide attendees with a diverse selection of styles to compare before casting their vote for the prestigious Lord Dabbler Cup. Brewers looking for even more competition can tackle an obstacle course to earn the title of American Brewer Warrior (currently held by Modist Brewing Company), while attendees can partake in giant beer pong, a silent disco, and live music. With a meat-and-cheese showcase (sponsored by Lunds & Byerlys) available in the heated Coliseum, the Winter Beer Dabbler looks sure to provide festive provisions to this snowbound season. 21+. Find tickets and more info at beerdabbler.com. 3 to 6:30 p.m.; 2 p.m. VIP. $50; $70 VIP; $20 designated driver. 1265 Snelling Ave. N., St. Paul; 651-288-4400. February 22 —BRAD RICHASON

9X22 DANCE/LAB: FINAL SHOWS

BRYANT-LAKE BOWL THEATER

In 2003, Minneapolis dancer/choreographer Laurie Van Wieren—a brilliantly unconventional performer who's quirky in all the best ways—started 9x22 Dance/Lab. Named for the stage dimensions at BLB, the monthly presentation, which Van Wieren has curated magnanimously and ecumenically over the years, has brought in more than 500 choreographers and 1,500 dancers from around the globe to try out new material. Trusting in the inherent intelligence and benevolence of the Twin Cities dance community and its audiences, Van Wieren set up 9x22 as a conversation between performers and viewers. In her trademark white shirt and black pants, she deftly and disarmingly facilitates discussions about the work, which over the years has varied widely in style and aesthetic. The only limitations? The human imagination... and that tiny stage. This winter marks the end of the series, which will retire with a final performance in January. 7 p.m. doors. $6-$16 sliding scale admission. 810 W. Lake St., Minneapolis; 612-825-3737. November 27 and January 22 —CAMILLE LEFEVRE

KATIE WALLICH + THE YC X PERFUME GENIUS: THE SUN STILL BURNS HERE

WALKER ART CENTER

The bold-face name here is Mike Hadreas, aka Perfume Genius, who holds audiences rapt as he conjures, through his moving body, a delicate yet defiantly queer performance, giving a lilting voice to the rawest of intimate emotions. The fact that Seattle choreographer Kate Wallich, known for crafting dance worlds of gothic minimalism through a combination of classical and contemporary choreographies, has been paired with Hadreas is, well, pure genius. Together (and with Wallich's company The YC), they've fashioned an immersive, multimedia work in which bodies undergo a sensual yet harrowing descent before transcendence. 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday. $35. 1750 Hennepin Ave. S., Minneapolis; 612-375-7600. December 5-7 —CAMILLE LEFEVRE

MARK MORRIS DANCE GROUP: PEPPERLAND

NORTHROP

Nothing like a blast from the past to fight the end-of-January doldrums. Created to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Beatles' Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, Pepperland abounds with choreographer Mark Morris' native wit and theatrical savvy. Dancers in dark glasses and vivid Carnaby Street colors echo psychedelic trips, riffs on Indian music, Asian spirituality, and all the pop-culture folderol of the Swinging Sixties. Morris' movement borrows from modern and classical Indian dance, ballet, global, and folk dance forms. They make inspired pairings with the infinitely eclectic music of the Fab Four. Well, it's not exactly their music, rather a reimagining of it by Ethan Iverson, whose bold new arrangements of selections from the album are performed live by a jazz ensemble of trombone, vocals, sax, percussion, and, yes, even a theremin. Expect both a deconstruction and a celebration of Beatlemania. 7:30 p.m. $22-$47. 84 Church St. SE, Minneapolis; 612-624-2345. January 25 —LINDA SHAPIRO

BALLET WEST: JEWELS NORTHROP

Recognized by many as the greatest 20th-century ballet choreographer, George Balanchine trained in Russia, where he danced with the Mariinsky Ballet. He fled to Paris after the Russian Revolution, where he choreographed for the Ballets Russes. In the 1930s, he relocated to New York where, inspired by the sleek athleticism of American dancers, he revolutionized ballet. In his three-part work Jewels, from 1967, he paid homage to the stylistic influences that shaped him. “Emeralds,” danced to music by Fauré, captures the rhapsodic flow of French romanticism, while “Rubies,” to Stravinsky’s jazzy score, digs into the syncopations and sophistication of urban America. In “Diamonds,” set to music by Tchaikovsky, Balanchine goes back to the future, linking the clear-cut brilliance of 19th-century choreographer Marius Petipa’s imperial Russian style to the blaze and power of contemporary ballerinas. For the Northrop performances, all three gems will coruscate to live music. 7:30 p.m. Saturday; 2 p.m. Sunday. $22-$47. 84 Church St. SE, Minneapolis; 612-624-2345. February 22-23 —LINDA SHAPIRO

Arthritis sufferers like cannabis. Here's why

New surveys have turned up the exciting news that huge portions of those who suffer from arthritis have found some amount of comfort in cannabis. A study of over 1,000 users published earlier this month showed striking results when it comes to how arthritis sufferers deal with their pain. Creaky Joints, an expansive online community of people who suffer from arthritis, conducted the internal survey which showed 57% of users have tried cannabis for their arthritis pain, and of these, 90% have found it beneficial to their needs. [1]

The study pertained both to CBD and cannabis products more generally, including more traditional marijuana use, which casts a fairly wide net when it comes to cannabis and pain. Still, cannabidiol, or CBD, tends to convey all the benefits of marijuana without the mind-altering effects it is known for. The Creaky Joints study results can be seen in further detail using the link below. [2] In case you are suspicious, it may be noteworthy that the team that conducted the study presented their findings before the European Congress of Rheumatology, or EULAR, which meets in Madrid.

More official research has also shown the promise for CBD in treating chronic pain symptoms, especially those tied to conditions like rheumatoid arthritis. This works because CBD influences the body's endocannabinoid system, or ECS, to reduce inflammation and pain which results from it. [3] [4] Symptoms of rheumatoid and other types of arthritis aren't limited to pain. The study also detailed how arthritis sufferers face insomnia, nausea, anxiety and a host of other issues in tandem with their normal chronic pain. [2]

CBD's prevalence across the globe has exploded in recent years, but studies and data go back over a decade. Leafly reports that the benefits of cannabis for pain, inflammation and arthritis go as far back as 2000. [1]

In America, this change is punctuated by the 2018 Farm Bill. The bipartisan legislation made hemp plants legal at the federal level, and since then states have been moving to legalize their own laws toward hemp and its CBD derivatives. Regulatory procedure, best practices and other considerations at the federal level are still unclear for CBD infused in food and drink products under the Food and Drug Administration, but otherwise many states have been receptive to the influx of market interest in CBD.

If you or someone you know is interested in trying out CBD for arthritis or some other ailment, be sure to check out the knowledgeable team at Nothing But Hemp in Uptown (Minneapolis), Grand Avenue (Saint Paul), Downtown White Bear Lake, Maplewood Mall and Forest Lake. We also have a full hemp dispensary in the Maplewood Mall. We carry locally grown & award winning hemp products. We promise to provide you with a farm to table hemp experience.

STORYTELLING: JULIE BUFFALOHEAD

MINNEAPOLIS INSTITUTE OF ART

Julie Buffalohead's The Garden, which was part of the Minneapolis Institute of Art's revolutionary exhibition "Hearts of Our People: Native Women Artists," is a narrative work with twists and turns that are as ironic as tricksters Rabbit and Coyote themselves. The subject? The controversy over Sam Durant's Scaffold at the Walker Art Center. At first glance, this or any of Buffalohead's work appears whimsical, humorous, and fairytale-like. Look again. A member of the Ponca Tribe, Buffalohead invests her figures with the agency to address ignorance and right wrongs, delve into domesticity, and explore the nuances of contemporary life. That they do so with wicked wit and quiet wisdom speaks to Buffalohead's intelligence and insight. Within the narrative strata lie many truths, which the artist deftly reveals. 2400 Third Ave. S., Minneapolis; 888-642 2787. November 23-September 6 —Camille LeFevre

COURTESY FOUND OF FOOTAGE FESTIVAL

FOUND FOOTAGE FESTIVAL: VOLUME 9 HEIGHTS THEATER

In the heyday of VHS—unlike our current era of online videos—exposure to regrettable choices captured on tape played to a select audience. Thanks to comics Joe Pickett and Nick Prueher, however, the most stunningly misguided productions of the videotape era, rediscovered in dusty thrift-store bins and neglected boxes of estate-sale clutter, serve as hilariously confounding material for the duo's immensely popular Found Footage Festival. Since 2004, Pickett and Prueher (childhood friends whose individual writing credits include contributions to, respectively, the Onion and The Colbert Report), have amassed a cult following around their bizarre video compilations, which treat audiences to a seemingly endless assortment of perplexing obsessions, imprudent advice, and unflattering family mementos. Their latest collection promises even more uproarious oddities, including a tone-deaf karaoke montage, hopelessly mundane home movies, and unearthed footage of the 1988 Miss Junior America Wisconsin pageant. 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. $14. 3951 Central Ave. NE, Columbia Heights; 763-789-4992. December 3-4 —BRAD RICHASON

A CHOICE OF WEAPONS, HONOR, AND DIGNITY

MINNESOTA MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART

The camera, particularly in the hands of Gordon Parks and Jamel Shabazz, is a powerful weapon through which black dignity, humor, and humanity are unflinchingly documented. Parks famously captured life from the Jim Crow era through the Civil Rights movement, creating now-iconic images of emotional and socio-political resonance. Inspired by Parks' work, Shabazz has been chronicling youth culture, the hip-hop scene, and black visual culture. Together, these champions of black life have documented an evolution of empowerment. Robin Hickman-Winfield, CEO and executive producer of SoulTouch Productions and a great-niece of Parks, curated the exhibition. 350 Robert St. N., St. Paul; 651-797-2571. January 23-April 19 —CAMILLE LEFEVRE

JASPER JOHNS

AN ART OF CHANGES: JASPER JOHNS PRINTS, 1960-2018

WALKER ART CENTER

American flags. Targets. Mark making. Collage. As banal as some of Jasper Johns' subject matter and motifs may seem, his technique was muscular and his work was freighted with hidden socio-political meaning. Or not so hidden, as in the toothbrush mounted with human teeth and titled The Critic Smiles. Decades after he bridged Abstract Expressionism by ushering in a new era known as Pop Art, Johns' work—especially his printmaking—continues to engage. This exhibition, a selection of 90 pieces drawn from the Walker Art Center's collection, surveys six decades of the artist's printmaking oeuvre. A few paintings and sculptures are also included. There will be a Walker After Hours preview party on Friday, February 15. Tickets are $20. 1750 Hennepin Ave. S., Minneapolis; 612-375-7600. February 16-September 20 —CAMILLE LEFEVRE

SIX

ORDWAY CENTER FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS

The Ordway's original musicals have been among the strongest productions in the Twin Cities over the past few years, so why all the buzz over a touring show? Well, this one is a little different. Instead of wandering to Minnesota after a Broadway run, this production is hitting the Cities just before its Broadway debut—and with the same leading actors, so local audiences can see a show that's very similar to the one landing on the Great White Way in February. Hamilton demonstrated that musical audiences are ready to see history revisited through new perspectives, and the audiences who've seen Six have raved about the way it uses a pop-concert format to celebrate the unsung wives of Henry VIII. Given that Henry's kingdom would one day birth the Spice Girls, the concept is a natural fit. A sensation created by two then-undergraduate theater artists in the U.K., Six also bucks the Broadway trend toward jukebox musicals and revivals. It's all new, and you can see it in St. Paul first. 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays; 2 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. $35. 345 Washington St., St. Paul; 651-224-4222.

A DOLL'S HOUSE, PART 2

JUNGLE THEATER

Did A Doll's House, the 1879 proto-feminist classic by Henrik Ibsen, need a sequel? Apparently so, as this season Lucas Hnath's 2017 Part 2 is tied with The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time as the most produced play in America. Its Twin Cities debut will be helmed at the Jungle Theater by director Joanie Schultz, starring Christina Baldwin in her second consecutive season taking the Jungle stage as a badass 19th-century mom (last year she was Marmee in Little Women). The original play ends—spoiler alert—with Nora, a wife and mother, leaving her family to live an independent life. What did that life entail? Audiences learn the answer in A Doll's House, Part 2, which was nominated for a shelf of Tonys; Laurie Metcalf won for her performance as Nora. The New York Times called Part 2 “smart, funny, and utterly engrossing,” and this season the Jungle is one of a dozen U.S. companies to co-sign. Baldwin will get to use her skill at comic acting in a play written in contemporary language, exploring a character who captivates 21st-century theatergoers as much as she did 140 years ago. 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays; 2 p.m. Sundays. $35-$45. 2951 Lyndale Ave. S., Minneapolis; 612-822-7063. January 15-February 23 —JAY GABLER

THE UGLY ONE

OPEN EYE THEATRE

Theater doesn't always need to play coy. "In The Ugly One, we've dropped all subtlety," says director Amy Rummenie. "It tears along at farce-like speed, and the wit is razor-sharp. It's a nearly dizzying script, using sharp character turns to veer from scene to scene without pause." German playwright Marius von Mayenburg has been compared to his unsparing American contemporary Neil LaBute, so get ready to wince with recognition of the hard truths in this satire about a man who seeks to improve his underwhelming appearance with plastic surgery that works all too well. Walking Shadow Theatre Company is presenting this short and punchy play at Open Eye Figure Theatre, a cocoon-like space that's always somehow redolent of its namesake company's macabre, darkly comedic aura. That should prove a perfect fit for The Ugly One, says Rummenie. "I love how that demure proscenium arch frames the stage, focusing us in on the action." With scene changes "in the blink of an eye," she adds, "this will have to be all about the action." Find tickets at brownpapertickets.com. 7:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays, plus Tuesdays, February 4 and Wednesday, February 12; 2 p.m. Sundays. $28-$40. 506 E. 24th St., Minneapolis. February 1-16 —JAY GABLER

SILENT SKY

BELL MUSEUM

Using a planetarium as the venue for a play about astronomy? It's such a good idea, Theatre Pro Rata had it before the planetarium even existed. Artistic director Carin Bratlie Wethern says the company has been considering Silent Sky, Lauren Gunderson's 2011 play about pioneering Harvard astronomer Henrietta Swan Leavitt, for years. "OMG, wouldn't it be wonderful to do it in a planetarium?" she says. "So we actually started talking with the Bell before their new space was even built." Silent Sky will be the first theatrical production to be staged in the Bell Museum's new Whitney and Elizabeth MacMillan Planetarium, but it's far from the first time Theatre Pro Rata is forgoing a conventional space: They've worked in a college lecture hall, a defunct movie theater, and even a cemetery. "We're bringing our expertise on that," says Wethern, and the museum staff are "bringing their expertise in creating this beautiful visual world that is going to be surrounding the play." 7:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays; 3 p.m. Sundays. $15-$30. 2088 Larpentour Ave. W., St. Paul; 612-626-9660. February 22-March 8 —JAY GABLER

SCHOOLBOY Q

ARMORY

Of the rappers who once were more pointed about presenting themselves as a group called Black Hippy, Schoolboy Q has the most conventional persona: He's a truculent party boy with a deep-voiced snarl and a bobbing, declarative flow, equally given to loud flexing and solemn, detailed gangsta stories. Yet he's also recorded fabulous, hypnotic pop singles ("Collard Greens," with frequent collaborator Kendrick Lamar) and weirdly ethereal experimental tracks ("Man of the Year" samples the Chromatics). His new Crash Talk is a casual, comfortable, summery L.A. party-rap album, his breeziest and most unruffled yet, abounding with slick, blaring flute hooks ("5200"), tightly wound electrofunk grooves ("Chopstix"), shiny bounce everywhere, even a token R&B slow jam with Ty Dolla $ign and YG ("Lies"). Where once he favored Digi+Phonics-produced beats whose dark, murky bass rumble exuded a pungent, ominous cannabinoid odor, he's now rapping over sweeter synthetic blends, and his voice has lightened too. With Nav. 6:30 p.m. $37-$67+. 500 S. Sixth St., Minneapolis; 612-315-3965. November 23 —LUCAS FAGEN

POLICA

7TH ST. ENTRY

As winter prematurely arrives, a reminder to be careful out there: Two winters ago Polica singer Channy Leaneagh fell off her roof while clearing ice dams from her gutters and wound up in a brace for months. (She's doing much better now, thankfully.) You may not be surprised to learn that much of Polica's fourth album, When We Stay Alive, was inspired, whether directly or obliquely, by that event, though half of the songs were written before the accident. When We Stay Alive won't be released till January 2020, so this two-night Entry stand—Polica's first time back on stage since Leaneagh's injury—isn't just a chance to see the band in a more intimate setting than usual, but also an opportunity to hear the music before the rest of the world. With Lady Midnight (night one) and Margaret (night two). 18+. 7 p.m. (night one) and 8 p.m. (night two). $20. 701 First Ave. N., Minneapolis; 612-338-8388. November 26 and 27 —KEITH HARRIS

BROCKHAMPTON

ARMORY

"The internet's first boy band" met in high school through a Kanye West fan website and gradually evolved into a large, fluctuating collective whose cross between boy band and rap crew resonates as much for their conceptual cunning as for their group synergy. Like the Beatles, they count as a boy band because you're supposed to have a favorite member. It doesn't matter if you choose driven mastermind Kevin Abstract, acrobatic chatterbox Dom McLennon, terse drawler Matt Champion, dreamy crooner Bearface, or any number of others (Brockhampton currently has 13 members, although the lineup will surely be different in a month); they all have distinct flows and personas, and listening to Brockhampton means figuring out which boy is yours. If their albums don't cohere into the sleekest pop shapes, that's because the excess of personality risks clutter, flooding their playful, genre-bending alternative rap songs with dozens of competing voices, ideas, and sounds that bounce around in tight kinetic spaces. With Slowthai and 100 Geecs. 7 p.m. $37-$47+. 500 S. Sixth St., Minneapolis; 612-315-3965. December 3 —LUCAS FAGEN

SHELLY MOSMAN

LOW
FITZGERALD THEATER

Over the past two decades, Low have developed their dreamy style, polishing their cautious electric textures, contemplative melodies, and fragile harmony singing into mild, immersive, almost meditative guitar blankets that still resemble complete, legible rock songs. But the Duluth band's most recent album, 2018's Double Negative, fractured that sound, sending guitar shards and digital crunches flying into a thousand tiny pieces. Buried beneath a flickering haze of static, at once louder and less encumbered by songform, it's an extreme, experimental album, but no less gentle. The band has described Double Negative as a response to contemporary political horror, which comes through less in the fragmentary lyrics than the general mood: exhausted, mournful, trying to hang onto stray moments of empathy and coherence. Entwining their voices as always, Alan Sparhawk and Mimi Parker sound ghostlier and more entangled than ever. This show celebrates the 20th anniversary of their 1999 Christmas EP. 7 p.m. $35. 10 E. Exchange St., St. Paul; 800-514-3849. December 13 —LUCAS FAGEN

WINTER TRAILS DAY

FORT SNELLING STATE PARK

The prolonged Minnesota winter can be a trying experience, especially under whiteout conditions and subzero temps. To combat cabin fever, the annual Winter Trail Day at Fort Snelling State Park offers a vast range of activities to encourage engagement with the great outdoors. For those seeking cardio stimulation, the event provides such options as cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, winter hiking, and fat-tire biking. Others might prefer sampling the comparatively more relaxed endeavors of ice fishing, archery, or camp games. Best of all, no prior experience is needed to participate in any of the activities. Novices will be supported with complimentary hot coco, ongoing demonstrations from outdoors enthusiasts, and a welcoming environment. Regardless of age or ability, the Winter Trails Day is an ideal opportunity to discover a recreational activity capable of transforming our long winters into a season to be enjoyed rather than merely endured. 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. Free; $7 day parking. 101 Snelling Lake Rd., St. Paul; 612-725-2389. January 11 —BRAD RICHASON

U.S. POND HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP

LAKE NOKOMIS

Every year, in the dead of winter, hockey teams come together to compete in one of the most epic amateur sporting tournaments in the nation. Players come from all walks of life and backgrounds; some are retired professional athletes, others have simply been playing for years at their local pond. Some are from the Twin Cities, and some are from Canada and beyond. Divisions include youth, men, women, and rink rat, for those who are 40 and up, with the winner taking home the Golden Shovel. For those not competing, a warming tent will offer beer and eats from Green Mill, and there will be a special section for all ages open skate. For complete game schedules, see the official U.S. Pond Hockey website, uspondhockey.com. 5 to 9 p.m. Thursday; 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday; 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. BY SARAH BRUMBLE

An argument could be made about how the Grape Salad Controversy of 2014 changed Minnesota food culture forever. In the great rush to separate What They Think of Us from What We Are, a lot got left out in the middle.

That's where we at City Pages went digging.

To "celebrate" our most tradition-centric food holiday, we found old family recipes that warm the heart and terrify the soul, hailing from Methodist church cookbooks and magazine clippings circa 1974 that spring eternal online. By the end of our little show-and-tell, no one was happy and we willingly ate lutefisk! Shit, it's almost like we held a real Thanksgiving.

What follows is a breakdown of the most astounding dishes you definitely could serve this year... but probably shouldn't.

Stargazy Pie

When people say British food is bad, Stargazy Pie is exactly what the fuck they're talking about. In addition to the obvious—whole sardines, boned and gutted but with the heads left on, for some unholy reason—the recipe has cooks fill a pie crust with onion, bacon, hard-boiled eggs, and lemon juice. Salt and pepper to taste.

It is, like, test-kitchen-engineered to smell bad. Its taste can only be described as "violently fishy." Its creator wrote, "I regret making it; I regret serving it; I regret eating it; and I'm worried it has irreparably ruined at least three friendships." That said, Stargazy Pie has defenders. They are not to be trusted.

Midwestern Pea Salad

Combine canned peas (no freshies allowed), hard-boiled eggs, chopped celery and onion, "salad dressing" aka Miracle Whip, and Velveeta cheese in a bowl. Add salt, pepper, and garlic salt to taste. The trick here is letting the Velveeta melt into the mess until it's everywhere and nowhere at once, like a vengeful ghost.

Pea salad is a more reliable binary than traditional conceptions of gender in so many Midwestern families. The men hate it. The women (and its creator) see it as a festive part of the holidays! To children, it gives off the air of a delicate, tea party sort of food for those who enjoy finger sandwiches and relish trays. Elders know it's made of garbage and celery, which doesn't change the emotional and physical space it's given at the table.

WORSE THAN GRAPE SALAD

Vintage Thanksgiving recipes straight from hell (or the '70s)

Perfection Salad

The first aspic entrant was a so-called Perfection Salad, in which shredded iceberg lettuce, celery, roasted green peppers, a few olives, and pimentos levitate in a gelatin mixture of sugar, lemon juice, and an alarming amount of vinegar.

Any time the mold was tapped to check that it was congealing, one's hand acquired a persistent vinegary/onion smell, which leached into the air and lingered for hours. The amount of added liquids also meant it never really set. In the end, Perfection Salad tasted like watery vinegar jelly, or, as one brave taste-tester described it: "that vomit you get at the end of a barfing session when you just have stomach acid, water, and herb remnants left to puke."

Glace Fish Mold, served with real mayo

We're sad (but unsurprised) to report that the Glace Fish Mold fared worse than its Perfection kin. Tuna, roasted green peppers, a ton of pimento, chopped onion, celery, and cucumber are suspended in a gelatin mixture, which here were combined in a brain mold for artistic effect—as was the eyeball garnish.

Before adding the gelatin, this was basically a fresh tuna salad (mayo on the side), and it tasted pretty damn good. Ironically, the thing that held it all together ultimately destroyed it. The Glace Fish Mold's final texture was reminiscent of lutefisk, and packed a flavor-smell reminiscent of that formaldehyde/preservative permeating science classes of yore on animal dissection days.

The Flying Jakob

Not to throw down the gauntlet, but only real Swedes (might) know about the Flygande Jakob, aka Flying Jakob. The casserole made from a whole (pulled) chicken, four bananas, nearly a quart of heavy whipping cream, Italian seasoning, a spicy ketchup mix, bacon, and peanuts rendered sunset orange and molten seemed to create more confusion than disgust. We'll count that a victory? Clashing as all its ingredients may be, it was hands-down one of the most edible dishes presented, and some even "liked" it! Still, the Mad Doctor Jakob should be punished for confusing so many mouths.

Sardine-stuffed Lemons

Sardine Stuffed Lemons consists of a mixture of canned sardines, horseradish, lots of lemon juice, heavy cream, and gelatin crammed into a hollowed-out lemon. Each baseball-sized lemon was meant as a single serving.

While most people were horrified by what amounted to perfectly plated gourmet cat food accompanied by little baby brioches to make it look deceptively appealing, a few lost souls actually said it was the best dish of the night and went back for more. Its creator's opinion of the fishy lemons falls somewhere in the middle, but he also admits to eating two of the Stargazy Pie's fish heads, "so my taste buds/judgement/life choices clearly can't be trusted."

SpaghettiO and Hot Dog Jell-O Bozo Send-up

Instead of separating this timeless culinary delight's ingredients of SpaghettiO's, Vienna sausages, and gelatin into their intended formation of a pasta-stuffed ring mold with meat tubes erupting from its center, modern science and technology were used to create an all-in-one abomination and outright middle finger to god.

Initial research suggested that the best way to ensure a proper release from the Bozo the Clown mold was to coat the clown's face in mayonnaise, which also resulted in a delightful marbling throughout the first layer, made of Mario and Luigi SpaghettiOs with meatballs. The second layer's hot-dog water gelatin featured Julien dogs for clown hair, with sliced polka-dot dog rounds at the collar. Rounding out the striated tectonic horror were little frank confetti bits throughout.

Our dish's creator wrote, "As Thomas Ligotti believes that nonexistence has never hurt anyone, I believe that the existence of this dish hurts everyone." All who tasted Bozo agree.

Just when tongues were most tired and we thought all bases had been covered beyond our wildest nightmares, in strolled a colleague at the eleventh hour toting... lutefisk. It arrived plain and simple, tepid and jiggy, festooned with mini-Swedish flags like tiny badges of honor. And that, Reader, is how we discovered lye-soaked-fish really isn't that bad. ☞

COMEDY

KYLE KINANE

PANTAGES THEATRE

"I'm semi-retired or in 'phase three,'" says comedian Kyle Kinane. "But I don't know what either of those mean." The upshot is that he's not touring week in and week out. "You can't just tour and do comedy," he explains, "because then all your comedy is about touring or—god forbid—something you ingest from the news, and that's not what I want. You can get great jokes that way, but then you get sad because you're reminded of how terrible things are." Instead, Kinane takes chunks of time off to live his life. "I took all summer off and took a little vacation with the missus. I rode my bike and tried to have as much fun as possible." A comedian's comedian, Kinane is predominantly playing theaters, which fits in well with his overall career path. "I've always looked at the long game," he says. "I'm not trying to be someone else. If someone wants me to act, I'll do it, but I don't live in L.A. to do auditions. I came here to do spots and be in a place where comedy will get you noticed. All that other stuff has been fun, but I love standup." That being said, he's still a bit uneasy with playing theaters. "I'm a real funny $25 dollar comedian," he states. "I'm not a funny $50 comedian." 7 p.m. $29. 710 Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis; 612-339-7007. —P.F. WILSON

ALYSSA BAGUSS: YOU WERE NEVER HERE

MINNEAPOLIS INSTITUTE OF ART

How often do you find yourself enveloped in nature? How often do you find yourself admiring nature via a technological or smart device? The latter more than the former is a good guess for many. This is why Minneapolis-based artist Alyssa Baguss has created three new large-scale works: to challenge our perceptions and examine how our relationship with nature is changing because of technology. She takes our mediated experience several steps further with installations: one of imagery from Lake Itasca; another of Silverwood Park's oak savannah, using forestry camera data; and another created from the map-folding technique known as the Miura fold. Get immersed and become aware. Find her work in the MAEP Gallery as part of the Minnesota Artists Exhibitions Program. Free. 2400 Third Ave. S., Minneapolis; 612-870-3131.

DANA GOULD

ACME COMEDY CO.

It's that time of year again. The leaves change color, the temps dip, and Dana Gould performs at Acme. "Yeah, I usually come through during autumn, like a seasonal flu," he says. It's been an odd year so far, though. While Gould was on tour with close friend Bobcat Goldthwaite, the two were involved in a pretty serious accident. "As we were pulling into the theater in Atlanta, we were T-boned. We broke our ribs on each other." Both have recovered fully and plan to resume that tour, which is being filmed for a special, sometime next year. Meanwhile, in addition to touring on his own, Gould is doing his podcast, finishing a screenplay, and developing a new TV series. "I like to keep busy," he notes. As a viewer, though, he can't keep up with other TV shows. "There are four new streaming services," he says, "and people are recommending shows to me I've never heard of. And they say, 'It's from the people who did this other show.' And I haven't heard of that one, either. I have children and a life; I can't follow 17 different shows. I still watch Dragnet. Jack Webb knew how to tell a story economically." 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday; 10:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. $18-$20. 708 N. First St., Minneapolis; 612-338-6393. Through Saturday —P.F. Chamber Orchestra has had to make cuts. As a result, this is Liquid Music's last season with SPCO (the series hopes to continue on through new partnerships). This remarkable project, which encourages collaboration between varied and unexpected creatives, is heading to the Walker Art Center this week. This edition, which is a co-presentation and co-commission with the museum, features composer, singer, and conductor Ted Hearne. Hearne brings diverse styles to his compositions, drawing on chamber music, jazz, electronic music, and pop songs. His latest project finds inspiration in Dorothea Lasky, known for her pointed and decidedly feminist poetry. (She also has an amusing Twitter presence, and recently released a book with Alex Dimitrov featuring astrology for poets.) Hearne's 12-song suite traverses everyday life and heartbreak, and will be performed in conjunction with a real-time installation by conceptual artist Rachel Perry. Daniel Fish, who brought a dark and highly lauded revival of Rodgers and Hammerstein's Oklahoma! to Broadway this year, directs. 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday. $26. 725 Vineland Place, Minneapolis; 612-375-7600. Through Friday —SHEILA REGAN

CHRIS DISTEFANO

RICK BRONSON'S HOUSE OF COMEDY

Native New Yorker Chris Distefano has some new neighbors. "It's like this hipster person that loves yoga classes, fruit shakes, racial harmony; the 'we're going to make a difference!' type. No, man. You're going to get shot." He explains further: "Listen, I know you're having a good time with yourself, but you're on a unicycle. Have a good time, but you come down my block on one wheel we take that as a direct threat." He concedes that New York has a reputation for being a bit rude. "Nobody's nice to you, but I prefer that," he adds. "These new people are so nice it's offensive. They have manners. 'Good morning, sir.' Who the fuck are you? Don't talk to me. I know you're new here, and if you see something, say something. Other than that, we're just out here getting bagels and going back home." In addition to standup, Distefano has hosted shows on MTV as well as MSG, the Madison Square Garden sports network. His first hour standup special, Chris Distefano: Size 38 Waist, premiered earlier this year. 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday; 9:45 p.m. Friday; 7 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday. $16-$23. 408 E. Broadway, Mall of America, Bloomington; 952-858-8558. Through Saturday —P.F. WILSON

THEATER

WHAT IF

THE LAB THEATER

In the Moving Company's latest production, what if, the stage provides a means of reshaping perception, presenting the world from divergent angles while considering the unseen connections that bond us together. Collaboratively created, the ambitious new work derives its inspiration from antiquity, harkening back to the ancient and medieval worlds with storytelling tropes where people are locked in eternal conflict. Presenting these opposites in a contemporary context, the group looks to lend a more expansive spectrum to our vision, suggesting that even our fraught opposition constitutes an essential part of our shared existence. The show is in previews November 21-24. For tickets, visit themovingco.org. 7:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays (no show on Thanksgiving); 2 p.m.

FRIDAY 11.22

THEATER

MISS BENNET: CHRISTMAS AT PEMBERLEY

JUNGLE THEATER

When Jungle Theater presented Miss Bennet: Christmas at Pemberley during the 2017 holiday season, there was a heightened degree of curiosity. The play is an imagined sequel to Pride and Prejudice, Jane Austen's beloved tale of five sisters balancing social expectations and inner aspirations. Affixing a new appendage to such a revered story demonstrates tremendous audacity, but to succeed with such heartwarming aplomb speaks to the talents of Lauren Gunderson and Margot Melcon, playwrights attuned to the nuances of the original text. Set two years later, Miss Bennet finds four of the siblings reunited for the holidays at the estate of eldest sister Elizabeth and her husband, Mr. Darcy. This story, however, focuses on the most overlooked sister, the wickedly smart but painfully introverted Mary, who stumbles upon a potential romance of her own with the equally earnest Arthur de Bourgh. Their bantering dalliance forms the comic core of this crowd-pleasing holiday reprisal that marks the return of director/lead Christina Baldwin and former cast

SATURDAY

BARHOPPING BARRELS & BEARDS

HEADFLYER BREWING

Magically, facial hair is bringing people together to raise funds for a good cause.

This Saturday, the Minnesota Beard and Moustache Coalition is teaming up with HeadFlyer Brewing for an evening of beer, beards, and philanthropy, raising money for the American Cancer Society. During the day, two unique takes on the brewery's barrel-aged imperial stout will be offered: a Vanilla BAMF'D and Coconut BAMF'D. Singer/songwriter Preston Gunderson will provide tunes. Folks with smooth faces are welcome here too, of course. 1 to 10 p.m. 861 E. Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis; 612-567-6345. —JESSICA ARMBRUSTER

The show is in previews November 20-21. 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays (no show on Thanksgiving), plus Tuesday November 26 through December 10, Sundays in December, and Monday, December 23; 2 p.m. Sundays in December. $40-$50. 2951 Lyndale Ave. S., Minneapolis; 612-822-7063. Through December 29 —BRAD RICHASON

ART/BENEFIT

MCAD ART SALE 2019

MINNEAPOLIS COLLEGE OF ART AND DESIGN

Every winter, just before Thanksgiving, MCAD hosts this huge alumni and student art sale, with pieces packed into every nook and cranny of the event's space. There will be over 7,000 items for sale by over 400 artists working in just about every medium imaginable: paintings, sculpture, photography, jewelry, comic-book illustration, furniture, and more. Prices and sizes are just as varied; you might score a tiny $25 masterpiece or a $1,000 work that covers your entire entryway. This is a three-day event. Thursday's VIP reception will include appetizers and beverages. If that $150 ticket price is way too much for you, don't worry: There will be plenty of potential purchases at Friday's more economical reception, and still many opportunities to find a treasure at Saturday's free open sale. Pick a corner and pore over every possibility, or wander the halls until you find something that catches your eye. 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. $150 Thursday; $25-$30 Friday; free Saturday. 2501 S. Stevens Ave., Minneapolis; 612-384-7917. Through Saturday —JESSICA ARMBRUSTER

ART/FESTIVAL

2010 ARTBLOK 2019 HOLIDAY SALE

2010 ARTBLOK

This weekend, Artblok is hosting an open studio night showcasing over 30 artists working out of the building. New artists this year include stone- and crystal-jewelry maker Karlotta Designs, and Johanna Helmin, whose paintings feature portraits and guitars. Returning favorites like Foci MN will offer highly giftable glass ornaments and other festive items. Should you require sustenance, Totally Baked Donuts will be serving up vegan/ gluten-free treats in seasonal flavors. 5 to 10 p.m. Friday; noon to 8 p.m. Saturday; noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Free. 2010 E. Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis.

again this weekend with phase one: twinkling lights. Leading up to the big plug-in will be a handful of family-friendly activities and entertainment, including performances from the Minnesota Dance Collaborative and the Teddy Bear Band. Following a brief opening ceremony will be the grand finale, where the giant tree will be lit with sparkling lights as fireworks go off above. Phase 2 will be on December 6, when the Winter Skate starts up. This year it's moving from the Landmark Center to the St. Paul Saints' ballpark, where the 40-foot super slide will also return. 4 to 7 p.m. Free. 109 W. Fourth St., St. Paul. —JESSICA ARMBRUSTER

PARTY

GRRRL SCOUT: HALF DOZEN

VARSITY THEATER

Grrrl Scout is throwing a birthday party at the Varsity, as the LGBTQ dance night is turning six. The evening will include a set from queer disco-rockers Static Panic, along with performances from Jac Pau, founder of Transcendance Cabaret, which features BIPOC, trans, non-binary, and gender non-conforming artists. Foxy Tann will play master of ceremonies as host. In between bits you may want to wander over to the market area, which will host a pop-up featuring masc/androgynous secondhand/vintage business Show

TUESDAY 11.26

BARHOPPING

FRIENDSGIVING BLINGO

SISYPHUS BREWING

This installment of Blingo will be in the spirit of Thanksgiving and friendship. For those unfamiliar, Blingo is basically bingo, only it tends to attract barhoppers rather than the church-basement crowd. Depending on the venue, the prizes are often a little less wholesome, too. Think free beer, pimp chalices, and tickets to various shows around town. Sisyphus' Blingo is hosted by B. Louise, a drag queen who describes herself as a "clown trapped in a diva's body." In addition to beers on tap, there will be pumpkin pie and potluck eats; feel free to bring your own dish to share should the mood strike you. During the evening, funds will be collected for MN Youthlink, which provides services to the MN Homeless Youth Population, many of whom are LGBTQ teens. One dollar of each beer sold tonight will also benefit the organization. 7 p.m. Free. 712 Ontario Ave. W., Minneapolis; 612-321-8324. —JESSICA ARMBRUSTER

THRILL 'EM WITH KINDNESS

Tom Hanks is a treasure in the other Mr. Rogers movie

LACEY TERRELL/SONY PICTURES

BY BRYAN MILLER

What kind of an asshole do you have to be to give a less-than-positive review to a Mr. Rogers movie?

Luckily for this asshole, A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood isn't exactly a Mr. Rogers movie. The film is based on a 1998 Esquire profile written by Tom Junod, who here is fictionalized as Lloyd Vogel (The Americans' Matthew Rhys), an emotionally distant investigative journalist assigned to write a brief puff piece about the beloved children's TV show host.

At first the resistant Vogel can't believe Fred Rogers (Tom Hanks) is truly as kind-hearted as he seems. Vogel tries to dig deeper to find some darker truth about the man, but as the two spend more time together, Rogers' stubbornly persistent benevolence helps Vogel begin to reconcile with his past.

Vogel is struggling as a new father with his wife, Andrea (Susan Kelechi Watson), especially in light of the recent reappearance of his estranged father, Jerry (Chris Cooper). Rogers' almost superhuman powers of understanding gradually help Vogel chisel through the shell of resentment he's used to protect himself emotionally after so many years.

In one instructive scene between Vogel and Rogers' wife, Joanne (Maryann Plunkett), he refers to the preternaturally gentle TV personality as a saint. Joanne tells him she doesn't like the word saint, because it implies Fred's goodness is something that cannot be attained by mere mortals. He works hard at being so kind, she says.

If only the movie dug into that process. There are traces of it, including one fascinating moment near the end that hints at the very real, ongoing human challenge of being so open and considerate. Director Marielle Heller provides only the tiniest glimpses of this conflict, however, mostly casting Rogers as a kind of American protestant Dalai Lama dispensing invaluable emotional wisdom.

Hanks is perfect as Fred Rogers in a way that perhaps nobody else alive could be. Maybe it takes an American treasure to play an American treasure, and Hanks is almost certainly the reigning titleholder of the country's most cherished older white guy. (When he dropped an F-bomb on Good Morning America back in 2012, the

A BEAUTIFUL DAY IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD
directed by Marielle Heller area theaters, now playing whole world instantly gave him a muligan. Because he's Tom Effing Hanks.) His performance is so engrossing, it's hard not to wish the whole movie would follow him. Using Vogel's story as a way to speak about Fred Rogers' legacy is an interesting conceit, but it doesn't get us much closer to a greater understanding of Rogers himself.

Nothing against the talented Rhys, who is aided by a terrific supporting cast, in particular Enrico Colantoni as Rogers' assistant, the wonderful Watson (of This Is Us), and Cooper doing dynamite work as the thorny but repentant father. This feature film version can't quite evoke the depth of feeling manifested by the exceptional documentary Won't You Be My Neighbor?, as evidenced by one particular scene that mirrors the documentary's most powerful moment but can't live up to it.

Oh, and Mr. Rogers? If there's a heaven, you're definitely there right now. Sorry about saying "asshole" twice. CF

PENELOPE'S ODYSSEY

Margaret Atwood focuses on the epic's women

THERESA BURGESS

BY JAY GABLER

In The Testaments, her recent sequel to The Handmaid's Tale, Margaret Atwood explores the character of Aunt Lydia: the brutal authority figure who, Atwood reveals, was secretly working to undermine the repressive government of Gilead. Did Aunt Lydia's good intentions justify her complicity in the abuse of the vulnerable handmaids placed under her supervision?

Atwood explored similar territory in The Penelopiad, a 2005 novella the author adapted into a 2007 play that's now getting a solid staging from Theatre Unbound at Gremlin Theatre. The piece tells the story of the mythical Penelope from her own perspective, but also surrounds her with a chorus of maids who won't let her off the hook for her role in their own suffering and deaths.

Yes, deaths. You know everyone's dead, because (a) it's been a few millennia, and (b) we're told as much at the outset, when Penelope (Audrey Johnson) greets us from Hades. Penelope's got plenty of company down there, including her famously beautiful cousin Helen (Eva Gemlo), who's still followed around by a drooling pack of men because "desire does not die with the body," Helen observes. "Only the ability to satisfy it."

In Atwood's pithy and accessible language, Penelope recounts the circumstances of her tragic life. She was a young bride to Odysseus (Danielle Krivinchuk), bearing him a testy son (Haley Haupt, going full Slytherin) only to see her husband take off to retrieve Helen from Troy. During his absence, Penelope enlists her maids to help distract the wolfish suitors who prowl around trying to take her hand after the presumed death of Odysseus. The maids enjoy conspiratorial slumber parties with their boss, but you know the women's plot isn't going to end well.

Director Julie Phillips leads a well-rehearsed ensemble. Several actors also occasionally play instruments, under the musical direction of performer/composer Rhiannon Fiskradatz, to score the action or accompany the chorus' frequent interludes of song. Gemlo proves particularly talented, straddling a cello or strumming a mandolin between darkly amusing appearances as the smoldering, self-involved Helen.

The Gremlin stage is a tight space for such a large cast and an epic tale, but the performers make efficient use of flexible props and set elements designed by Ursula K. Bowden. If you appreciate the author's insights into the corrosive effects of patriarchy and the moral dilemmas faced by good people with bad choices, you'll enjoy this haunting production of one of her lesser-known works. You'll also never read The Odyssey the same way again. A

LUCY HAWTHORNE

HOW 2019 GOT LESS WEIRD

Pop music started off in a new direction this year—and then turned back around

BY KEITH HARRIS

It was a moment. A symbolic one, for sure, but sometimes those are the kind that matter the most in pop. On June 8, 2019, the three artists at the top of the Billboard Hot 100 singles chart—Lil Nas X, Billie Eilish, and Khalid—were 21 years old or younger. And what's more, they sounded it.

You couldn't script a more perfect changing of the guard. If anything, the symbolism was too pat. When Lil Nas X hijacked the mainstream with his trap-country pastiche "Old Town Road," he blocked not just Taylor Swift but a Justin Bieber-abetted Ed Sheeran from the number-one slot. For a minute, you could almost believe that there was still some room within the grinding mechanisms of capitalism for the kind of surprises that make mass culture still worth following.

Eilish's "Bad Guy," another hit that Nas held in abeyance, was even more promising, because if the novelty rapper hardly seemed like a career artist, Eilish appeared to be just getting started. (Bieber, looking like a wizened has-been at 25, even had to hop on a "Bad Guy" remix.) As for Khalid, the eldest and most conventional of the trio, I contend that "Talk" may sound tame against a true innovator like Miguel or Frank Ocean, but its wavy Disclosure production and perceptive lyrics make him the sort of three-dimensional figure male R&B hadn't heard on the radio in a good while.

And 2019 wasn't yet ready to settle down. Despite a full-court press for the material on her new album, Cuz I Love You, including the relentless commercial licensing of "Juice," Lizzo seemed incapable of scoring a bona fide hit. Then, the two-year-old "Truth Hurts" became a smash. And on its heels, the even older "Good As Hell" joined it on the charts. At this rate, maybe something from Liz-zobangers might be a hit in 2020. For a moment, then, it seemed like anything could happen.

But nothing much did. As the year closes, “Old Town Road” feels like a hundred years ago. I don’t blame Lil Nas X for the sketchiness of his follow up, “Panini,” but I won’t praise him for its cute little whistled hook and rudimentary rap. And the remaining surprises on the current pop charts aren’t good ones.

It is certainly odd, I suppose, that Maroon 5’s “Memories” sounds like a sad teen’s version of a Vampire Weekend song, but hearing it is like when you see a photo of a celebrity’s less attractive sibling. It is even odder that middling talent/lowlife Chris Brown, back on the radio with “No Guidance,” has hung on somehow—and by “somehow” I mean with an unfortunate Drake feature misguidedly lending considerable clout. In this context, Post Malone, whose stoned appeal continues to elude me, seems like a genuine poet when he spikes the dour “Circles” with a line like “You thought that it was special/ But it was just the sex, oh.” Look on the bright side: At least he’s not G-Eazy.

Epitomizing the trend toward normalcy is the continued homogenization of Camila Cabello, whose potential to become one of pop’s great weirdos the music industry seems determined to squander, if not thwart. The former Fifth Harmony member can be a disorientingly extravagant singer—she distended “heroin” into “he-ro-ween” with “nicotine” on her song “Never Be the Same.” But her recent, more conventional singles have stalled, while her moderately sexy duet with beau Shawn Mendes, “Señorita” (which rhymes with “hard to leave you”), has soared, though the most interesting thing about it is the line “hooked on your tongue,” which sounds painful. It’s one of two songs this year that plays up Cabello’s Cuban heritage as exotic (the other is Ed Sheeran’s “South of the Border”—what border is that anyway?), suggesting that whoever’s in charge of these things heard breakthrough solo hit “Havana” as less part of a “Latin pop” takeover than as a traditional novelty hit.

Something similar has happened with Selena Gomez. Maybe it’s wishful thinking, but I’ve always suspected that she wants to be a more idiosyncratic hitmaker than her catalog suggests. So while the critically beloved “Bad Liar” stiffed, she’s had her first number-one with a big, unnecessary ballad, “Lose You to Love Me.” The world wants ballads, and in late 2019 it got them. Bieber even came back, stowing away on Dan + Shay’s innocuously countryish “10,000 Hours,” where he blends in so well he’s redundant.

But the biggest ballad of all comes from a newbie. You may have heard “Someone You Loved” without knowing its title or recognizing the culprit as a young Scot named Lewis Capaldi. Over a piano arpeggio that sounds as though it’s been rooted out of Adele’s trash, the lad groans like Ed Sheeran’s stuck in his throat and he can’t hack him out. And yet, as heartbroken sentiments go, “I was getting kind of used to being someone you loved” is a decent one, and Capaldi has proven himself a gabby, frustratingly hard-to-hate personality.

There’s something blinkered, I know, in scrutinizing the pop charts for some hope that the IP monopolists don’t have a total lock on mass culture, as futile as expecting Democrats to become socialists. But like Lewis says, when you kind of get used to something, it’s hard to change. CF

MUSIC CRITICS' PICKS

COMETHAZINE

VARSITY THEATER, WEDNESDAY 11.20
Comethazine raps in a hoarse, dusty smoker's voice, with a rasp in his throat—the sort of voice rappers have typically used to sound world-weary and dangerous. But he plays it for laughs, exploiting the comic contrast between his vocal grain and his goofy, boyish flow. His new Bawskee 3.5 is the third and ostensibly final installment in his spooky Bawskee mixtape series. With Collin Storke and Modern Day Hip-pies. 6:30 p.m. $25. 1308 Fourth St. SE, Minneapolis; 612-604-0222. —LUCAS FAGEN

CHRIS JANSON

TREASURE ISLAND RESORT & CASINO, SATURDAY 11.23
What distinguishes Chris Janson from your average loud country arena-rocker is his shamelessness, his willingness to try out absolutely any style of country song, even (especially?) if it contradicts his persona on the previous song. His new Real Friends lets loose with soaring saxophone anthems ("Mine Does"), glistening nuggets of homiletic wisdom ("Everybody's Going Through Something"), and fist-pumping, chest-thumping male-bonded love duets (the title track, with Blake Shelton). With Thompson Square. 12+. 8 p.m. $39+. 5734 Sturgeon Lake Rd., Welch; 800-222-7077. —LUCAS FAGEN

YOTTO

SKYWAY THEATRE, SATURDAY 11.23
"Is This Trance?" wonders Yotto on a track whose upbeat drum machines and shimmering percussive synthesizers sound anything but. On both his own instrumental songs and his pop remixes (with Coldplay, Diplo, Gorillaz, and Röyksopp), the Finnish house DJ specializes in spiritual uplift through the hypnotic repetition of rhythm tracks. 18+. 8 p.m. $25. 711 Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis; 612-333-6100. —LUCAS FAGEN

MATIAS AAKKO

HELMET

VARSITY THEATER, SUNDAY 11.24
As one of the longest running and most plainly dressed experimental metal bands, Helmet rock brutally and crunchily, with a light, humane touch and a buoyant punk beat. Their riffs bite, but they also breathe easy, played with an underlying, modest simplicity. Their current tour celebrates their 30th anniversary as a band. 18+. 7 p.m. $20. 1308 Fourth St. SE, Minneapolis; 612-604-0222. —LUCAS FAGEN

FREE WILL ASTROLOGY

>> By Rob Brezsny

♈ ARIES (March 21-April 19): “Beware of what disturbs the heart,” said Ibn Mas’ud, a companion of the prophet Mohammed. “If something unsettles your heart, then abandon it.” My wise Aries friend Artemisia has a different perspective. She advises, “Pay close attention to what disturbs the heart. Whatever has the power to unsettle your heart will show you a key lesson you must learn, a crucial task you’d be smart to undertake.” Here’s my synthesis of Ibn Mas’ud and Artemisia: Do your very best to fix the problem revealed by your unsettled heart. Learn all you can in the process. Then, even if the fix isn’t totally perfect, move on. Graduate from the problem for good.

♉ TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Taurus social critic Bertrand Russell won the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1950. He’s regarded as the founder of analytic philosophy and one of the 20th century’s premier intellectuals. But he went through a rough patch in 1940. He was adjudged “morally unfit” to accept his appointment as a professor at the City College of New York. The lawsuit that banned him from the job described him as being “libidinous, lustful, aphrodisiac, and irreverent.” Why? Simply because of his liberated opinions about sexuality, which he had conscientiously articulated in his book Marriage and Morals. In our modern era, we’re more likely to welcome libidinous, lustful, aphrodisiac, and irreverent ideas if they’re expressed respectfully, as Russell did. With that as a subtext, I invite you to update and deepen your relationship with your own sexuality in the coming weeks.

♊ GEMINI (May 21-June 20): In her poem “What the Light Teaches,” Anne Michaels describes herself arriving at a lover’s house soaked with rain, “dripping with new memory.” She’s ready for “one past to grow out of another.” In other words, she’s eager to leave behind the story that she and her lover have lived together up until now—and begin a new story. A similar blessing will be available for you in the coming weeks. Gemini: a chance for you and an intimate partner or close ally to launch a new chapter of your history together.

♊ CANCER (June 21-July 22): Some scientists deride astrology despite being ignorant about it. For example, they complain, “The miniscule gravitational forces beaming from the planets can’t possibly have any effect on our personal lives.” But the truth is that most astrologers don’t believe the planets exert influence on us with gravity or any other invisible force. Instead, we analyze planetary movements as evidence of a hidden order in the universe. It’s comparable to the way weather forecasters use a barometer to read atmospheric pressure but know that barometers don’t cause changes in atmospheric pressure. I hope this inspires you, Cancerian, as you develop constructive critiques of situations in your own sphere. Don’t rely on naive assumption and unwarranted biases. Make sure you have the correct facts before you proceed. If you do, you could generate remarkable transformations in the coming weeks.

♊ LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): As you glide into the Season of Love, I’d love you to soak up wise counsel from the author bell hooks. (She doesn’t capitalize her name.) “Many people want love to function like a drug, giving them an immediate and sustained high,” she cautions. “They want to do nothing, just passively receive the good feeling.” I trust you won’t do that, Leo. Here’s more from hooks: “Dreaming that love will save us, solve all our problems or provide a steady state of bliss or security only keeps us stuck in wishful fantasy, undermining the real power of the love—which is to transform us.” Are you ready to be transformed by love, Leo?

♊ VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Burrow down as deep as you dare, Virgo. Give yourself pep talks as you descend toward the gritty core of every matter. Feel your way into the underground, where the roots meet the foundations. It’s time for you to explore the mysteries that are usually beneath your conscious awareness. You have a mandate to reacquaint yourself with where you came from and how you got to where you are now.

♊ LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It’s natural and healthy to feel both the longing to connect and the longing to be independent. Each of those urges deserves an honored place in your heart. But you may sometimes experience them as being contradictory; their opposing pulls may rouse tension. I bring this to your attention because I suspect that the coming weeks will be a test of your ability to not just abide in this tension, but to learn from and thrive on it. For inspiration, read these words by Jeanette Winterson. “What should I do about the wild heart that wants to be free and the tame heart that wants to come home? I want to be held. I don’t want you to come too close. I want you to scoop me up and bring me home at night. I don’t want to tell you where I am. I want to be with you.”

♊ SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The Louvre Museum in Paris displays 38,000 objects throughout its 18 acres of floor space. Among its most treasured 13th-century artworks is The Madonna and Child in Majesty Surrounded by Angels, a huge painting by Italian painter Cimabue. When a museum representative first acquired it in the 19th century, its price was five francs, or less than a dollar. I urge you to be on the lookout for bargains like that in the coming weeks. Something that could be valuable in the future may be undervalued now.

♊ SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Sagittarian performance artist Marina Abramovic observes that Muhammad, Buddha, Jesus, and Moses “all went to the desert as nobodies and came back as somebodies.” She herself spent a year in Australia’s Great Sandy Desert near Lake Disappointment, leading her to exclaim that the desert is “the most incredible place, because there is nothing there except yourself, and yourself is a big deal.” From what I can tell, Sagittarius, you’re just returning from your own metaphorical version of the desert, which is very good news. Welcome back! I can’t wait to see what marvels you spawn.

♊ CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Upcoming events may bedevil your mind. They may mess with your certainties and agitate your self-doubts. But if you want my view about those possibilities, they’re cause for celebration. According to my analysis of the astrological indicators, you will benefit from having your mind bedeviled and your certainties messed with and your self-doubts agitated. You may ultimately even thrive and exult and glow like a miniature sun. Why? Because you need life to gently but firmly kick your ass in just the right way so you’ll become alert to opportunities you have been ignoring or blind to.

♊ AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Every writer I’ve ever known says that a key practice to becoming a good writer is to read a lot of books. So what are we to make of the fact that one of the 20th century’s most celebrated novelists didn’t hew to that principle? In 1936, three years before the publication of his last book, Aquarian-born James Joyce confessed that he had “not read a novel in any language for many years.” Here’s my take on the subject: More than any other sign of the zodiac, you Aquarians have the potential to succeed despite not playing by conventional rules. And I suspect your power to do that is even greater than usual these days.

♊ PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): “If you are lucky enough to find a way of life you love, you have to find the courage to live it,” wrote Piscean novelist John Irving. In the coming weeks, Pisces, you will have the power to get clearer than ever before about knowing the way of life you love. As a bonus, I predict you will also have an expanded access to the courage necessary to actually live that way of life. Take full advantage!

That Professor

Is it wrong for me to have sex with my students?

I'm a fortysomething gay male professor at a small college. I try hard not to get attracted to students and usually succeed. But it's tough to resist when you're surrounded by hot, smart, fun, horny young guys in a rural area with few other options. Over the past few years, I've had sex with several students. None were students I was currently teaching or likely to teach, and two had graduated. I'm not violating college policy, which only bans faculty from getting involved with students they're currently teaching. I haven't ever made the first move—and when one hits on me, I've usually mustered the willpower to ignore him. On rare occasions when I've ended up letting my cock do the thinking, I've treated my younger partners with kindness and respect and observed your campsite rule. All of these guys swore to keep our activities secret, but word might leak out, and I don't want to become known as one of "those" professors. Most important, I don't want my queer male students—many of whom look to me for mentorship—to think I'm grooming them for sex, and I don't want my other students to feel like second-class citizens. On the other hand, I'm a sex-positive person who believes that happy, consensual banging has its own intrinsic value. I tend to be attracted to younger guys, and I think part of it is that they're more excited about sex. Fucking them feels less transactional than the typical hi-bang-jizz-wipe-bye Grindr hookup that seems to be the norm with gay guys in their 30s and older. I'm struggling with how I should feel about these off-campus romps. We're all adults, and we're not breaking any rules. Obviously the behavior is professionally risky for me, probably foolhardy. But is it immoral? Above all, what should I do when future opportunities present themselves?

PROFESSOR HORN-DOG

Can we please not describe one adult subtly and perhaps unintentionally telegraphing their attraction to another adult as "grooming"? That term refers to adult sexual predators insinuating themselves into the lives of minors, slowly gaining their trust and the trust of their family members, so they can abuse them sexually. We shouldn't confuse or cheapen its meaning by applying it to your behavior—which, while not criminal or immoral, is incredibly stupid.

Yes, these relationships are permissible. They aren't against the rules, you're all consenting adults, and you're honoring the campsite rule (leave them in better shape than you found them). But you're not asking what's permissible, but what's advisable. And what you're doing is crazy inadvisable for all the reasons you cite: the risk of promising and hot gay male students misinterpreting your interest in them as sexual, your straight students feeling like they may not be getting your full attention, and your mediocre and not hot gay male students—sorry, your mediocre and not conventionally attractive gay male students—interpreting their failing grades as sexual rejection.

I, too, am a sex-positive person who believes in happy, consensual banging, and I don't think what you're doing is immoral. But it is incredibly reckless. Power and consent are minefields that students, professors, and administrators are tiptoeing through, PHD, but you're humping your way across them. Becoming known on campus as one of "those" professors—because you are one of those professors—could wind up being the least of your problems. What if your college revises its rules? What if you have a falling-out with a student you banged and he files a complaint? What if you want to move to a different school that has different rules and your reputation precedes you?

Finally, PHD, it's fine to be attracted to younger guys. But if all your experiences with guys in their 30s have been dispiriting and transactional, well, it sounds like you were the common denominator in a lot of meh sexual encounters. Speaking from experience, I can say that plenty of guys over 30 are excited about sex and good at it. If every guy over 30 that you've been with has been underwhelming, well, it's possible they were picking up on your lack of enthusiasm/attraction and reflecting that back at you.
